CAMO

CAMO has come up with a super-fast hidden deck fastening system called EdgeClip. It's designed to be used with grooved deck boards. It has little legs that straddle the joist, so you don't have to hold them in place while you fasten them down. Another thing you don't have to do is fuss with the screws because they're already in the clips ready to go. And one more thing you don't have to do is fumble around trying to line up the drill bit with the screw head because every box of fasteners comes with a Never-Miss Guide which funnels the bit right onto the fastener head for a perfect alignment every time. CAMO also just released the CAMO DRIVE drill extension, so you don't have to bend over to secure EdgeClips. CAMO DRIVE works on other fastening systems as well. When using both the CAMO DRIVE and EdgeClip products, you can actually install the fasteners on a bunch of boards, and then screw them all down at the same time while standing up. That's great news for your back. CAMO makes a similar clip for angled decking called EdgeXClip. A container with 90 EdgeClips costs about $ 39.95. You can buy them at the CAMO website, and check out their great video as well.
