Sean Collinsgru, owner of Premier Outdoor Living Sold on CAMO® EdgeClips and CAMO DRIVE; Project Comes in On Schedule Despite Weather and Inspection Delays

Grand Rapids, MI -- Sean Collinsgru, founder of Premier Outdoor Living, LLC, in Palmyra, NJ, 10 minutes from Cherry Hill, is a self-proclaimed skeptic who expects to see proven real-life results. He recently wrapped up a deck project plagued by heavy downpours and inspection back-ups right on time thanks to the CAMO® DRIVE™ stand-up tool and CAMO EdgeClips™.

"I am a skeptic no more," said Collinsgru, who was fed up after years of deck clip systems not working. That changed after he revved up the CAMO DRIVE tool for the first time to drive in the lined-up EdgeClips which uniquely hug the groove and joist. "I yelled out, oh my gosh this thing really works! I am super impressed," said Collinsgru. See his reaction here

He speedily went up and down the Deckorators grooved boards, and "zoot zoot-- drove them in without kneeling or bending--a game-changer." He estimates it saved him half a day on deck board installation alone. "It took five minutes to line up about six boards with the EdgeClips," he noted. Thanks to the extreme time-savings, Premier can move on to their next deck project and build more decks during the season.

According to Collinsgru, Deckorators and the new CAMO systems work like hand and glove. The grooves on Deckorators' boards are a bit narrower than most, but the gusset on the EdgeClip grips the board tightly and doesn't slip or ping away like most clips systems. Deckorators recently added CAMO EdgeClips to their approved list of fasteners.

Collinsgru said he only offers fastener-free deck surfaces to his customers, and EdgeClips are the long-awaited answer to the issues with clips. He looks forward to trying the new CAMO Starter Clips for perimeter boards, to eliminate face fastening on the first, last, and outer boards.

Throughout the South Jersey and Philadelphia suburbs, Premier specializes in decks, patios, and landscaping that reflect homeowners' styles and the way they live. Collinsgru and his crew continue to rely on CAMO to ensure the highest quality work and to get it done in a timeframe that pleases customers. "I was very impressed with how EdgeClips grasped onto the joist, making it really easy to just keep going. I can't do it with any other clip system. There's a lot of engineering and creativity behind these products, and we're in for the long haul," said Collinsgru.
