National Nail's STINGER® Brand Added to Roofing Giant GAF "Tools4Success" Guide for Factory-Certified Contractors

Grand Rapids, MI – National Nail's STINGER® brand, the industry leader in cap-fastening technology for roofing underlayment, has been added to the GAF Tools4Success Guide, a catalogue of preferred vendors for members of the manufacturer's Certified Contractor Program (CCP). GAF, North America's largest roofing manufacturer, continuously builds vendor partnerships to bring its factory-certified contractors exclusive offers and business-building tools for their businesses.

"Vendor partner relationships are a critical part of our CCP offering to assist our contractors in building their businesses and increasing jobsite efficiencies," said Jim Slauson, vice president of GAF Certification Program and Services. "We are pleased to add National Nail's STINGER® brand to our Tools4Success vendor portfolio to get the best-quality products into their hands."

"We are thrilled to have National Nail's STINGER® brand chosen as a GAF preferred vendor," said Scott Baker, CEO, National Nail. "The STINGER® cap-fastening system is a faster, safer, and lower-cost option to protect against moisture and high winds. The STINGER® caps create a better hold and prevent tearing and blow off of the underlayment. It's an honor to be able to share this technology with the elite network of GAF factory-certified contractors." He adds that all STINGER® systems comply with roofing underlayment warranties.

STINGER® collated tools are 50% faster than applying caps by hand which allows the contractor to complete more roofs each year and ensures a safer application by maintaining three points of contact (one hand, two feet).

First developed by National Nail in the 1970s, the STINGER® brand of cap fastener came to the forefront of innovation as a faster, safer way to reduce moisture from entering the house by diverting water away from entry points caused by staples or nails.
